Speicherstadt:

The world's largest warehouse district has landmark status and was awarded the status of UNESCO World Heritage Site, just as the adjacent Kontorhausviertel and the Chilehaus (an exceptional example of Brick Expressionism).

Außen- und Binnenalster:

The Inner Alster, located directly in the city centre, and the much larger Outer Alster form a huge lake area and are a very popular recreational El Dorado for jogging, strolling and water sports.

Reeperbahn:

The legendary Reeperbahn street (and area), locally also known as "Kiez" (hood), is still Hamburg's most popular entertainment district. You will find anything on this "most sinful mile in the world" ranging from discotheques, cabaret and musicals to sex shops, brothels and similar businesses.

Planten und Blomen:

The huge park is a popular attraction for visitors of any age with an outstanding cultural programme in summertime.

Harbour and Landungsbrücken/Piers:

The "Gateway to the world"; Elbphilharmonie (Tours need to be prebooked! www.elbphilharmonie.de/en/tours), Hafencity, dockyards, Old Elb Tunnel and the popular harbour tours.

Michel:

Hamburg In General

Officially called the Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg is the second-largest city of Germany as well as one of the country's 3 federal city states, with a population of roughly 1.8 million people. With its harbour being one of the world's largest transshipment ports, Hamburg is an important logistics site within Europe. The historic "Speicherstadt" warehouse district was declared a UNESCO World Heritage site; clinker facades as well as the numerous canals and waters of the river Elbe and the Alster lakes are characteristic for the Hamburg cityscape. The city is also known for its many musicals. The new Elbphilharmonie building that was opened in 2017 is now one of the world's most distinguished concert halls and quickly became the city's new landmark.

U2 in Hamburg

U2 shows in Hamburg can be counted on the fingers of one hand: 1981 (Boy Tour) in "Onkel Pös Carnegie Hall", the same year in the "Fabrik" (October Tour) and in 1985 (UF Tour) in the Congress Center. In 1993, Bono and the Edge took part in the "Against Racism" festival and played "One together with a local drummer and Jo Shankar (violin) at the „Thalia Theater“. So it is about time for the band to return to the Hanseatic City.
